

The Most Exciting Round at Wimbledon

Often, the most crowd-pleasing points of tennis are the long rallies, where the players challenge each other by moving around the court, with one ultimately putting away the point with a rousing winner. By the stats, these points would translate to a low number of aces and errors and a high average distance travelled per point by all players. Using these metrics, this chart graphs the excitement of each round of play at Wimbledon 2016 in the men's tournament.

